The Wool Crop.

It is estimated from returns received so far that the total wool product of the United States for the last year was about 225,000,000 pounds. In 1880 we imported 128, 000,000 pounds, which was consider ably above the average. This is materially against the interest of our wool raisers, because it is of such a quality that they would not bother raising it, and is used for purposes that good wool would not be put to.

It is charged by the Washington Post, good Democratic authority, that the Hon. William H. English owes the Democratic party money for expenses incurred in the memo rable effort to elect him Vice-Presi dent. The Post says if he will pay up the party can wash its hands of him, and intimates that the operation will give general satisfaction. All of which testifies afresh to the abiding love of the party for Mr. English.

THE bill which Dr. Bliss presents for his services as surgeon aftending States is generally believed to be exorbitant. He wants $50,000 for him self. He would be handsomely remunerated with $10,000. It is lamentable to see a spirit of jobbery connected with this sad business. Dr. Bliss undoubtedly did all that he could—was indefatigable in his labor and care. We have no disposition in letters of living fire, the valor and to criticise his professional work. But he would not think of making so large a bill against any individual, and therefore it seems to us that he shows the disposition so common with people dealing with the Government in meaner things. He wants manner, recognizing our enemies as to get more than his service was worth because it is the Government prepared for the verdict." gallant sons of one great family; but let a foreign power interfere and we he is dealing with. It would have declined to send in any bill, leaving ulate but devastate every portion of his compensation to Congress, as there was no possible doubt of liberal treatment.—Ex.

In the midst of the noise a hiss from the gallery was heard. As soon as the signs of approbation subsided a little, the hiss became more audible, and there were cries of condemnation. A special officer instantly discovered the man who was hissing, and stepping down the steep aisle advised him to desist. This attracted attention to him, and before the officer could get him out of the theater a crowd of men and boys near by pitched upon the of-fender. With his "mind's eve' he was measuring the depth |of the mud in the old square, and with a smile and graceful bow he received the scribe. The object of the visit was to learn if there was any truth in the report that there was war between Mr Lucas and the 10 colored chorus singers with the troupe. The story was that the singers had threatened to leave the commany if their salary was not raised, and that they were jealous of Sam. Mr. Lucas flath demed the existence of any feelings of bitterness or jealousy between him and the other colored members of the troups and remarked as the reporter left the tive rything was "peaceful and lovely, so to speak" One or two of the singers and that the relations between them and Lucas were pleasant.
